HOW OTTAWA SPENDS 1988-1989

The Conservatives Heading Into the Stretch

Katherine Graham, School of Public Administration, Carleton University

How Ottawa Spends is the Carleton University School of Public Administration's annual report card on the performance of the federal government. This is the book's ninth edition. It is intended to examine the record of the Conservative government as it heads into the next election, and to offer an informed prognosis for the future in a variety of policy fields, including: communications, consumer and corporate affairs, defence, fisheries, foreign aid, multiculturalism, northern and native policy, and social welfare. In addition, this volume examines the mythology of budgetary restraint and cutback management as it has been developed by the Tories.

PUBLIC BUDGETING IN CANADA

Allan M. Maslove, Michael J. Prince and G. Bruce Doern, all at the School of Public Administration, Carleton University

This first integrated book on the politics, economics, and management of public budgeting in Canada is intended as a companion volume to How Ottawa Spends. Researched and written jointly by economists and political scientists, this book provides an essential multi-disciplinary introduction to Canada's fiscal dilemmas. A wide range of ongoing budgetary controversies is examined, such as deficits and the implications of free trade. The authors also analyse the Mulroney years and the emergence of the "new right" in the Canadian political economy.

Negotiating Freer Trade

The United Kingdom, the United States, Canada, and the Trade Agreements of 1938

Ian N. Drummond and Norman Hillmer

On November 17, 1938, Great Britain, the United States, and Canada, after four years of discussion and manoeuvring, signed two wide-ranging and interlocking trade agreements. Although the negotiations began with a mixture of lofty and ignoble motives, in the end the latter predominated.

The authors have drawn on archival and statistical materials in all three countries to provide a clear and detailed account of the economic context of the mid-1930s.

Canada and the Métis, 1869-1885

D.N. Sprague, with a foreword by Thomas R. Berger

From 1869 to 1885, as they attempted to achieve self-government and land security in the West, the Métis found themselves in a protracted struggle with the government in central Canada.

Paying particular attention to the policies of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sprague shows that an opportunity for a real accommodation was missed by a government that reaped important political benefits and difficulties from a provocative course of superficial conciliation which culminated in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885.

The Public Realm and the Public Self The Political Theory of Hannah Arendt

Shiraz Dossa

From the time she set the intellectual world on fire with her reflections on Eichmann (1963), Hannah Arendt has been seen as an important commentator on political and cultural matters. Dossa underlines Arendt's unique contribution to re-inventing the idea and the ideal of citizenship, reminding us that the public realm is the locus of friendship, community, identity, and in a certain sense, humanity.

Arendt believes that no one who prefers private interest to public affairs in the old sense can claim to be fully human or truly excellent.
