A PROPENSITY TO PROTECT Butter, Margarine and the Rise of Urban Culture in Canada

W. H. Heick

For Canada the last century was one of great social and economic change: an increasingly urban population witnessed shifts from an agricultural to a mixed economy and from moderate to greater wealth. Heick chronicles how changing attitudes toward butter and margarine reflected the nature of that society. His important study of the Canadian butter/margarine competition brings to light how the lengthy debate manifested itself in political, economic and social milieux.

ETHNIC ARMIES Polyethnic Armed Forces from the Time of the Habsburgs to the Age of the Superpowers

N. F. Dreisziger, editor

Most armed forces in modern societies are multi-ethnic. They are composed of men and women of different races or cultures, often speaking different languages or dialects. The essays in this revealing collection argue that the "ethnic factor" in the armed forces of modern societies has implications that reach far beyond the military, affecting the social, moral and political development of states and influencing their cohesion, both in times of peace and during civil or international conflict.

REGIONAL MINISTERS

POWER AND INFLUENCE IN THE CANADIAN CABINET

Herman Bakvis

THE EXPERIENCE OF MENNONITE, HUTTERITE, AND DOUKHOBOR COMMUNITIES IN CANADA

Party Activists in British Columbia

Donald E. Blake, R.K. Carty, and Lynda Erickson

What are the people behind the scenes in BC politics like? Based on responses from over 800 party activists, this book looks at the characteristics, values, and beliefs of those at the party cores in BC's three main political parties. A full chapter examines the process that elected William Vander Zalm head of the Social Credit at that party's leadership convention in 1986. The authors also compare BC's "party militants" to those in other provinces and in national parties. cloth $35.95, paper $19.95

Fiji

Race and Politics in an Island State

Michael Howard

A timely and comprehensive analysis of Fijian politics, this book focuses on the causes and outcome of the May 1987 coup. It takes issue with most interpretations of that event and argues that the coup was a strike against democratic government by Fiji's ruling elite. A perceptive case study of racial politics, this book offers a significant new approach to the understanding of the dynamics of a non-Western political system. $39.95

Canadian Constitutionalism: 1791-1991

A conference to celebrate two hundred years of constitutional Government in Canada

Sponsored by the Canadian
Study of Parliament Group

With the Constitution Act of 1791, the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada - like Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island before them - acquired the right to representative government. The precedent established in the Maritimes was confirmed: the colonies of British North America were entitled to the rights and benefits of the form of political rule that is known today as constitutionalism.

On the occasion of the 1791 bicentennial, the Canadian Study of Parliament Group proposes a conference on November 1 and 2, 1991 in Ottawa to examine constitutional issues of abiding interest suggested by the Act. The Group welcomes papers on constitutionalism, limited government, representation, and on Canada's constitutional history and the parliamentary tradition, from scholars in Canadian government, history and political philosophy. It is hoped that a selection of the papers presented will be published as a collection to mark the bicentennial.

Individuals interested in presenting a paper are asked to submit an abstract of no more than 300 words no later than July 31, 1991 to the Secretary, Canadian Study of Parliament Group, P.O. Box 533, Centre Block, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0A4.

Le constitutionnalisme canadien : 1791-1991

Conférence pour souligner les deux-cents ans de gouvernement constitutionnel au Canada

Organisée par le Groupe canadien d'étude
des questions parlementaires

Avec la Loi constitutionnelle de 1791, les provinces du Haut et du Bas Canada - comme la Nouvelle-Écosse, le Nouveau-Brunswick et l'Île-du-Prince-Édouard avant elles - ont obtenu le droit de former un gouvernement représentatif. Ainsi, le précédent créé dans les Maritimes était confirmé. En effet, les colonies de l'Amérique du Nord britannique pouvaient désormais se prévaloir des droits et des avantages du régime politique qu'on appelle aujourd'hui le constitutionnalisme.

À l'occasion du bicentenaire de 1791, le Groupe canadien d'étude des questions parlementaires organise une conférence, qui se tiendra les 1^{er} et 2 novembre 1991, à Ottawa, pour examiner les questions constitutionnelles toujours d'intérêt évoquées par la loi. Le Groupe aimerait recevoir des documents portant sur le constitutionnalisme, le gouvernement restreint, la représentation ainsi que l'histoire constitutionnelle et la tradition parlementaire du Canada et rédigés par des universitaires spécialisés dans les domaines du gouvernement, de l'histoire et de la philosophie politique du Canada. Il espère réunir certains des textes présentés et les publier pour souligner le bicentenaire.

Les personnes intéressées à produire un document sont priées d'en envoyer un résumé d'au plus 300 mots au secrétaire du Groupe canadien d'étude des questions parlementaires, C.P. 533, édifice du Centre, Ottawa (Ontario) K1A 0A4, au plus tard le 31 juillet 1991.
